Between 1940 and 1945, he was not only Britain's Prime Minister he was also her Minister of Defense. He used his unique position to inspire and stimulate those who worked under him, and enterprise and inventiveness were always sure of gaining his support. Those qualities of vision, courage and statesmanship that made him the most outstanding figure of his time, in peace and in war, were the foundations of the allied victory.

Named for 'IKE': Mount Eisenhower is the new name given this peak in the Canadian Rockies, between Banff and Lake Louise in Alberta, to honor General of the Army, Dwight D. Eisenhower formerly supreme commander of the Allied Armies in Europe and now chief of staff of the United States Army. The Announcement changing the name from Castle Mountain was made by Prime Minister Mackenzie King on January 10 at a Canadian Club luncheon in Ottawa where the famous American soldier was guest speaker. Resemblance to a giant mediaeval keep gave the first name to the eight-mile long mountain whose highest point towers 9,380 feet above sea level. Formations easily identified as turrets, bastions and battlements rise over 4,000 feet from the valley floor. Back in the eighties there was a short-lived mining camp at the base of the mountain while during the First Great War a large internment camp was there. Montreal, Canada 10 January 1946

Marine Heroes revisit Iwo Jima – Celebrating his 70th Birthday, April 20th, General Holland W. “Howlin’ Mad: Smith, USMC, Retired, (left) World War II Commander of the Marines who fought on the island, flew to Iwo Jima Sunday with Lieutenant General Franklin A. Hart, current Commanding General of the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific (FMF-PAC), on their way to Japan and Korea. The Generals, both Iwo Jima veterans, here view a curved replica of the famed flag raising picture. During the last days of World War II, a Navy “Seabee” named F. T. Rich carved the life size statue out of limestone rock. However, the sculptor only carved four Marines – there were five that raised the flag.
