Accession: A91-7
Processed by: HP
Date Completed: October 1999

The papers of Edward K. Moss, Director of Public Information for the National Production Authority and the Defense Production Administration, were deposited in the Eisenhower Library in January 1991 by Mr. Moss.

Linear feet shelf space occupied:	5.2
Approximate number of pages:	9,700
Approximate number of items:	1,500

In March 1990 Mr. Moss executed an instrument of gift for these papers. Copyright in the unpublished writings of Edward Moss in these papers and in other collections of papers in any U.S. Government agency are given and assigned to the United States of America.

By agreement with the donor the following classes of documents will be withheld from research use:

1. Papers and other historical materials the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy or a libel of a living person.
2. Papers and other historical materials that are specifically authorized under criteria established by statute or executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, and are in fact properly classified pursuant to such statute or executive order.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The bulk of Edward K. Moss' Papers covers his activities from 1938 to 1953. These materials have been divided chronologically into three series. From 1939 to 1942 Moss worked for the Office of Government Reports. This was followed with a stint in the U.S. Navy during WWII. He served with the Third Fleet as the Officer in Charge of the Combat Information Central School in New Caledonia and later as the Air Defense and Combat Information Center Officer for the fleet. His papers do not document his immediate post-war position as director of public relations for the American Management Association from 1946 to 1950. Over half of this collection relates to his position from 1950 to 1953 as Public Information Officer for the National Production Authority and the Defense Production Administration. Except for his participation in two commissions in 1955 and 1956 and a White House Task Group in 1970, we have no information on his career after he left the NPA/DPA position

The first series documents his service with the Office of Government Reports, 1939-1942. It includes two folders of memoranda dealing with such varied subjects as freedom of speech and press, propaganda, public opinion and war, and war information officers. Summaries of published articles and a listing of articles and statements on topics relating to the Government in 1940 are also part of this series. Included are a number of reports published by the Office of Government Reports on such topics as the operations of the OGR, activities of various federal agencies, and the economic situation in Tennessee.

With the entry of the U.S. in World War II in December 1941 the Office of Government Reports began publishing a daily and weekly summary of war news, economic information, and government agency activity. Samples of these newsletters are in the files for December 1941 to February 1942

Another part of the first series is an unpublished manuscript for a book which consisted of public statements by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt on the subject of U.S. foreign policy and U.S. involvement in the war. Correspondence with potential publishers and background materials for the book round out the rest of the series.

The second series contains one box of material relating to Moss' World War II service in the U.S. Navy. There are several folders of training course materials for Fighter Direction Officers with information on radio procedures, principles of interception, radar control, air warning, and communication and air operations. Additional documentation in this series includes correspondence, messages, operating instructions, memoranda, organizational charts and diagrams, an air defense operation plan, and code word lists.

Series three begins with a single box of varied materials relating to the Defense Production Administration and the National Production Authority. Memoranda, orders, charts, agency policies, scrapbook of newspaper clippings, ads, and posters, personnel information, and speeches make up this material. The remaining 6 boxes of this series consist of published bulletins and reports. There are two large bound volumes of DPA bulletins for 1951 and 1952. The pages in these volumes are extremely brittle and fragile and must be handled very carefully.

There should be no copying from these volumes. The remainder of the series includes about sixty reports on defense production by the NPA in 1953. The reports are on such topics as production and distribution controls, labor, conservation, mobilization, the civilian economy, construction, aluminum, copper, iron and steel, chemicals, agricultural machinery, mining machinery, railroad equipment, aircraft, and water resources. This series reflects the domestic buildup and economic changes and controls made necessary by U.S. involvement in the Korean War.

The fourth and final series contains a variety of publications and reports which Moss had acquired. Combat Information Center Magazines were published by the Chief of Naval Operations in 1945 and 1946, and they have articles on the air war with Japan, carrier air operations, and the atomic bomb tests at Bikini. There are reports by a White House Conference on "rights" in 1966, a Joint Committee on Defense Production in 1967, hearings on Mexican-American Affairs in 1967, and a Policy Development Information Project in 1970.

The Edward Moss Papers provide additional materials on government agency activity during the Depression, the Home Front, domestic buildup prior to and at the beginning of World War II and during the Korean War, as well as some unique documentation on Fighter Direction in the Pacific Theater. The entire collection is open and available to researchers with the exception of seven pages of personnel forms, which are closed under the donor's deed of gift.
